Edition 12

2026 REPORT ON HRM TRENDS AND CHALLENGES IN BELGIAN
ORGANISATIONS

Dear HR professional

For the 12th year in a row, Vlerick Business School and Hudson have conducted the HR Barometer, a study examining current HR trends and challenges. The study provides insight into the HR priorities of leading companies operating in Belgium.

The HR Barometer is an annual initiative and comprises two parts. The first (stable) part focuses on the strategic importance of different HR practices by investigating the priority and mastery levels of 25 HR domains. In the second (variable) part, we focus on a specific challenge that is gaining momentum. This year we focus on The Future of HR.

This report was created by the Strategic Talent Management Centre (Vlerick Business School and Hudson). It contains an overview of the most important findings from the 2026 study. We hope this report will provide you with interesting and useful insights!

METHODOLOGY

Research design

- Online survey
- Target population:
250 largest* organisations in Belgium (including BEL 20)
- Target audience:
CHROs/HR Directors
- Broad spectrum of industries

company size measured by employee headcount*

Sample

- More than 1/2 of the target population participated
(N = 132)

Data collection

- January - February 2026

HR BAROMETER SURVEY

Looking back at the past year (2025), HR leaders indicate the priority of 25 HR practices and how well they master these practices.

Each year, we explore a specific HR practice that is gaining momentum. This year, we focus on The Future of HR.

I. HR PRIORITY

HR BAROMETER 2026: HR PRIORITY

"Looking back at the past 12 months (Jan-Dec 2025), please indicate the priority level for each HR domain"

Reported HR priorities for the past year
Scale: 0 - 100

HR PRIORITY x HR RATIO

- Organisations that prioritise HR domains such as Preparing the Organisation for Growth ($r = .288^{}$) and Teamwork ($r = .206^{*}$) generally have greater HR capacity (higher HR ratio).
- In contrast, organisations that focus on Preparing the Organisation for Stagnation/Downsizing ($r = -.205^{*}$) tend to have lower HR capacity (lower HR ratio).
- No significant relationship was found between prioritising Digital Transformation and HR capacity ($r = .036$), suggesting that greater investment in digital transformation is unrelated to the size of the HR department.

Distribution of organisations based on priority level indicated by HR Directors (scale: 0% = no priority - 100% = top priority)

A CLOSER LOOK: PREPARING THE ORGANISATION FOR STAGNATION/DOWNSIZING AS HR PRIORITY

- Although Preparing the Organisation for Stagnation/Downsizing has seen the strongest increase in priority score, it remains a relatively low priority for most companies. Organisations active in the Retail, Industry & Manufacturing, and Chemical sectors are notable exceptions, assigning higher priority to this HR practice.
- Organisations that prioritise Preparing the Organisation for Stagnation/Downsizing generally ...
 - ... place less emphasis on growth-oriented HR areas such as Recruitment & Selection ($r = -.355^{}$) and Learning & Development ($r = -.193^{*}$).
 - ... show a stronger focus on areas like HR Analytics ($r = .246^{}$), HR Operational Excellence ($r = .227^{}$), Cultural Change ($r = .230^{}$), and Industrial Relations ($r = .283^{}$).
- There appears to be no relationship with Digital Transformation ($r = .073$), suggesting that decisions about technology adoption are largely independent of whether an organisation is preparing for stagnation/downsizing.

IV. PRIORITIES FOR 2026

PLANNED PRIORITIES FOR 2026

"Please indicate your top 5 HR priorities for 2026"

PLANNED PRIORITIES OVER TIME

- Leadership Development is once again the number one planned priority for the coming year. Last year's planned top priority was fully confirmed: it also became the actual number one priority in 2025.
- Selection & Recruitment and Learning & Development fall out of the top 5 planned priorities for the first time. This decline is also noticed in the actual priorities for 2025 but not anticipated at that time.
- Cultural Change, planned as a top 5 priority for both 2025 (N°3) and the coming year (N°4) dropped dramatically to rank 13 in the actual 2025 priorities list. This reflects a misalignment between plans and reality and raises the question of whether HR is overestimating its ability to prioritise cultural change? While HR Directors consistently place it high on the agenda, in practice HR tends to focus on other more pressing matters.

CURRENT CONTRIBUTION

HR contributes to ...

EXPECTED CONTRIBUTION

HR needs to contribute to ...

- ... the organisational strategy as a strategic business partner
- ... business results as an operational business partner
- ... continuous organisational change
- ... the development of the company culture
- ... a future-ready organisational structure
- ... a strong employer brand
- ... a positive employee experience
- ... sustainability and ESG performance
- ... digital transformation across the organisation
- ... evidence-based decision-making across the organisation
- ... a physically healthy workforce
- ... a mentally healthy workforce
- ... innovation across the organisation
- ... a reskilled and upskilled workforce
- ... a diverse, equitable and inclusive organisation
- ... a flexible and blended workforce (e.g. mix of permanent employees, freelancers, consultants, etc.)
- ... strategic decisions regarding global workforce allocation (e.g. near- and offshoring)

For all 17 organisational outcomes, both current and expected contributions were assessed

17	Sustainability and ESG performance	N°16

Top and bottom 5 organisational outcomes based on expected contribution versus their ranking in terms of current contribution

TAKEAWAYS EXPECTED VERSUS CURRENT CONTRIBUTION AREAS

- Overall, HR already contributes to the organisational outcomes HR Directors expect the executive board to prioritise over the next five years.
 - Its strongest contributions are in the organisational strategy, continuous organisational change, and the development of the company culture.
 - Contributions are weakest in innovation and sustainability/ESG performance.
- The biggest gaps appear in the mid-priority areas:
 - According to HR Directors, the executive board considers a reskilled and upskilled workforce and strong business results as key outcomes for the coming five years. However, HR's current contribution in these areas is still perceived as relatively limited.

IMPACT OF INTERNAL HR OBJECTIVES ON FUTURE-ORIENTED HR STRATEGIES

"To what extent do the following internal HR objectives influence your HR department's future-oriented strategy?"

% of HR Directors who indicate that the objective has a (very) large influence

IMPACT OF EXTERNAL TRENDS ON FUTURE-ORIENTED HR STRATEGIES

"To what extent do the following external trends influence your HR department's future-oriented strategy?"

BIGGEST IMPACT

- Digitalisation, automation, and artificial intelligence
- Changing legal obligations
- Changing skills requirements
- Changing expectations (e.g. employee, market, customer)

MEDIUM IMPACT

- Talent shortages
- Economic volatility and inflation
- Changing workforce demographics
- Increasing business competition

SMALLEST IMPACT

- Increasing alternative work arrangements (e.g. gig work, hybrid work)
- Globalisation and cross-border collaboration
- Geopolitical tensions
- Climate and sustainability pressures

Based on the average score indicated by HR Directors on a 5-point scale (1 = not at all, 5 = to a very large extent)

IMPACT OF INTERNAL CHALLENGES ON HR'S FUTURE READINESS

"To what extent do the following internal challenges affect your HR department's ability to adapt to the future of work?"

Average score indicated by HR Directors on a 5-point scale (1 = not at all, 5 = to a very large extent)

A CLOSER LOOK: INTERNAL CHALLENGES IN RELATION TO OTHER MEASURED OUTCOMES

- In organisations where the HR Director indicates that gaps in technical and digital skills ($r = .201^$) and the need to adapt formal procedures and policies ($r = .180^$) hinder the HR department's ability to adapt to the future of work, HR is more likely to prioritise Learning & Development.
- In organisations where the HR Director indicates that a lack of a clear organisational vision or strategy hinders the HR department's ability to adapt to the future of work, the CHRO is less likely to be recognised as a strategic business partner by the executive board ($r = -.189^*$).

FUTURE ALLOCATION OF HR RESPONSIBILITIES

In the next five years, the HR department's focus should be allocated as follows:

... Engagement tends to be identified as a key HR priority ($r = .177^*$).

... changing expectations (e.g. employees, market, customers) tend to be viewed as an important external trend shaping the HR strategy ($r = .201^*$).

... HR is more likely to agree with the following statement: "In the next five years, the CHRO will primarily collaborate with the CEO and executive board to lead organisational change and embed change initiatives in the company culture ($r = .312^{}$).

A CLOSER LOOK: THE DATA-DRIVEN/ANALYTICAL ROLE OF HR

Statistically significant positive and negative relationships for the data-driven/analytical role of HR

In organisations where the HR Director anticipates a more data-driven/analytical role for HR in the next five years ...

... HR Analytics ($r = .301^{}$) and Compensation & Benefits ($r = .176^*$) are more likely to be identified as key HR priorities.

... HR is more likely to already contribute to business results ($r = .259^$) and digital transformation across the organisation ($r = .201^$).

... HR is less likely to agree with the following statement: "The future of HR is unpredictable; we have to take it as it comes" ($r = -.179^*$).

A CLOSER LOOK: THE ADMINISTRATIVE ROLE OF HR

Statistically significant positive relationships for the administrative role of HR

In organisations where the HR Director anticipates a more administrative role for HR in the next five years ...

... HR generally reports higher current mastery in:

- Selection & Recruitment ($r = .244^{}$)
- HR Operational Excellence ($r = .177^{*}$)

... HR is more likely to agree with the following statement:
"The future of HR is unpredictable; we have to take it as it comes" ($r = .281^{*}$).

HR AS A DRIVER OF CHANGE

"Our HR department doesn't just respond to change; we make it happen"

HR Directors who agree with this statement are more likely to work in companies where HR already plays a key role in shaping the organisational strategy ($r = .238^{}$), the company culture ($r = .338^{}$), and organisational change ($r = .301^{}$).

PERCEIVED FUTURE READINESS OF HR

"Our HR department is equipped with the skills needed to succeed in the future"

HR Directors who agree with this statement tend to report greater mastery in classic HR domains such as Selection & Recruitment ($r = .278^{}$), Performance Management ($r = .279^{}$), and Compensation & Benefits ($r = .236^{}$).

HR'S ROLE IN BUILDING FUTURE LEADERS

"Our HR department builds the leaders of tomorrow"

63%

HR Directors who agree with this statement are more likely to prioritise Leadership Development ($r = .233^{}$) and tend to report stronger mastery in this area ($r = .311^{}$).

% of HR Directors who (strongly) agree with the statement

HR'S ROLE IN BUILDING FUTURE TALENT

"Our HR department builds the workforce of tomorrow"

68%

HR Directors who agree with this statement tend to report stronger mastery across key HR practices, including Selection & Recruitment ($r = .220^$), Learning & Development ($r = .204^$), and Strategic Workforce Management ($r = .177^*$).

% of HR Directors who (strongly) agree with the statement

II. THE EVOLVING ROLE OF THE CHRO

HR LEADERS CHOOSE ACTION OVER PASSIVITY, BUT ...

"The future of HR is unpredictable; we have to take it as it comes"

% of HR Directors

... PERCEIVED UNPREDICTABILITY OF HR'S FUTURE INCREASES

"The future of HR is unpredictable; we have to take it as it comes"

% of HR Directors who (strongly) disagree with the statement

PERCEIVED UNPREDICTABILITY SHAPES HR'S FUTURE ROLE

- HR Directors who perceive the future of HR as unpredictable are more likely to assign lower importance to HR's role as a strategic business partner, both currently ($r = -.183^*$) and in the future ($r = -.295^{}$).
- HR Directors who perceive the future of HR as unpredictable tend to place greater focus on the administrative role of HR ($r = .281^{}$).
- HR Directors who perceive the future of HR as unpredictable tend to place less emphasis on the data-driven/analytical role of HR ($r = -.179^*$).

TOP 5 FUTURE FOCUS AREAS FOR CHROs

In the next five years, the CHRO will primarily collaborate with the CEO and the executive board to ...

TOP 10 CHRO SKILLS FOR THE FUTURE

% of HR Directors who ranked the skill in their top 5 skills for future CHRO success

THE CHRO AT THE EXECUTIVE TABLE

"In my organisation, the CHRO is a formal member of the executive board/top leadership team"

89%

"In my organisation, the CHRO is recognised as a strategic business partner by the executive board/top leadership team"

91%

In 1/10 companies, the CHRO is not a formal member of the executive board/top leadership team.

THE CHRO AT THE EXECUTIVE TABLE

- In organisations where the CHRO is a formal member of the executive board, Engagement ($r = .240^{}$) and Industrial Relationships ($r = .286^{}$) are more likely to be considered key HR priorities.
- In organisations where the CHRO is a formal member of the executive board, generally less focus is allocated to the human/coaching role of HR ($r = -.198^{*}$).
- In organisations where the CHRO is a formal member of the executive board, translating business objectives into HR needs is more likely to play a major role in shaping a future-oriented HR strategy ($r = .284^{}$).

THE CHRO AS A STRATEGIC PARTNER

"Over the next five years, the CHRO is expected to take on a more strategic role within the organisation"

67%

- HR Directors who agree with this statement are more likely to work in organisations where the CHRO is already a formal member of the executive board/top leadership team ($r = .321^{}$).
- HR Directors who agree with this statement are more likely to work in organisations where the CHRO is already recognised as a strategic business partner by the executive board/top leadership team ($r = .257^{}$).

THE CHRO AS A STRATEGIC PARTNER

- In organisations where the CHRO is expected to take on a more strategic role over the next five years, strategic HR domains such as Preparing the Organisation for Growth ($r = .184^*$), Digital Transformation ($r = .251^{}$), and Strategic Workforce Management ($r = .287^{}$) are more likely to be prioritised.
- In organisations where the CHRO is a formal member of the executive board, HR is more likely to already contribute to the organisational strategy as a strategic business partner ($r = .261^{}$).
- In organisations where the CHRO is expected to take on a more strategic role over the next five years, influencing and inspiring others is more likely to be identified as a key skill for CHRO success ($r = .291^$), whereas skills such as business acumen and commercial insight are generally seen as less critical ($r = -.287^$).

THE CHRO AS DEVIL'S ADVOCATE

"The CHRO should more frequently act as devil's advocate in key organisational decisions"

71%

- HR Directors who report that the executive board considers HR's contribution to evidence-based decision-making a key priority for the next five years are more likely to agree with this statement ($r = .560^*$).
- HR Directors who report that a lack of a clear organisational vision or strategy hinders the HR department's ability to adapt to the future of work are more likely to agree with this statement ($r = .253^*$).

FUTURE SUCCESS REQUIREMENTS FOR CHROs

"To succeed in the future, CHROs will need to reinvent their skills and capabilities"

HR Directors who agree with this statement are more likely to prioritise Retention ($r = .180^$), HR Operational Excellence ($r = .272^{}$), and Strategic Workforce Management ($r = .178^$).

4. FINAL TAKEAWAYS

TAKEAWAYS: HR PRIORITY & HR MASTERY

- 1 HR capacity shows its first big decline in a decade (!) Organisations now employ one HR professional per 73 employees (median), suggesting increasing pressure on HR departments to deliver strategic value with more limited resources.
- 2 Reported HR priorities show the largest shift since the start of the HR Barometer, reflecting a stronger preparation for economic downturn, while HR is still focussing on key HR activities, but in a more targeted way:
 - Preparing the Organisation for Stagnation/Downsizing showed the largest increase in reported HR priority (+28). However, it still ranks among the lowest priority areas, and the business world is divided: whilst the issue is barely a concern for 40% of organisations (scoring below 20), almost a quarter (24%) give an alarm score of over 80.
 - Traditional HR priorities such as Selection & Recruitment and Learning & Development no longer appear in the top 3 priorities but remain in the strength area. Investments in (new) employees are therefore still continuing at a slower, more realistic pace.
 - Leadership Development and Talent Management continue to be top priorities (N°1 & N°2), while Strategic Workforce Management became the N°3 priority, showing the high importance attached to a strong leadership and long-term people strategy.
- 3 Reported HR mastery & gaps:
 - HR Directors report increased confidence across all HR domains, with Hybrid Working as the only exception (-5), suggesting ongoing professionalisation of HR departments.
 - Key priority domains such as Digital Transformation and emerging domains like HR Analytics and Strategic Workforce Management are not yet areas where HR departments feel highly competent (area for improvement quadrant).
 - AI in HR increased in priority score but remains experimental for many HR departments (no priority quadrant).

TAKEAWAYS: THE FUTURE OF HR

- 1 Future focus of HR departments:
 - According to HR Directors, HR is shifting towards a more strategic (26%), followed by a human/coaching (23%), and change agent (21%) role.
 - HR's current efforts in developing the company culture, driving organisational change, and supporting the organisational strategy closely align with the executive board's expectations for HR to act as a strategic business partner and to lead continuous organisational change over the next five years.
- 2 Readiness gaps in digital transformation and workforce up- and reskilling:
 - Digitalisation, automation, AI, and evolving legal and skill requirements are the main external drivers forcing HR to adapt.
 - Reskilling and upskilling the workforce is ranked as the third most expected action by executive boards.
 - Despite its importance, HR's current contribution to digital transformation remains low, and the re/upskilling efforts are only average.
 - Within HR departments, limited digital skills and scarce resources are key obstacles to becoming future-ready.
- 3 The CHRO role continues to evolve toward strategic leadership:
 - Most organisations recognise the CHRO as a strategic business partner, who is expected to collaborate with the CEO and the executive board to lead organisational change and embed change initiatives in the company culture.
 - Skills such as strategic thinking, influencing and inspiring others, and transformational leadership are increasingly seen as critical competencies for future CHRO success.
 - More HR Directors see the future of HR as unpredictable (increase from 3% in 2022 to 12% now). Those who prefer a proactive approach place greater emphasis on HR as a strategic business partner and the data-driven/analytical role of HR.
